

FORM 1099-DIV: Government income

Income derived from direct U.S. government obligations

A mutual fund with income dividends that are earned from U.S. Treasury and certain other government securities may be categorized as a fund containing U.S. government obligations. Income from mutual fund investments in U.S. government obligations may be exempt from state personal income taxes. Some states, such as California, Connecticut, and New York, impose restrictions on a fund's ability to pass the exemptions on this interest income through to you. In this regard, the Wells Fargo 100% Treasury Money Market Fund* has met the requirements for pass-through to shareholders in California, Connecticut, and New York.

To determine the amount of income dividends that represent U.S. government obligations, examine the table and find the fund you held during the 2016 tax year and its percentage value. Refer to your Wells Fargo 1099-DIV, box 1a, and multiply this amount by your fund's percentage value. This will give you the amount of U.S. government obligations that may be exempt from your state income tax. If the fund does not appear on the table, please assume 0%.

For government money market funds: You could lose money by investing in the fund. Although the fund seeks to preserve the value of your investment at $1.00 per share, it cannot guarantee it will do so. An investment in the fund is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. The fund's sponsor has no legal obligation to provide financial support to the fund, and you should not expect that the sponsor will provide financial support to the fund at any time.*

Bond values fluctuate in response to the financial condition of individual issuers, general market and economic conditions, and changes in interest rates. Changes in market conditions and government policies may lead to periods of heightened volatility in the bond market and reduced liquidity for certain bonds held by the fund. In general, when interest rates rise, bond values fall and investors may lose principal value. Interest-rate changes and their impact on the fund and its share price can be sudden and unpredictable. Some funds, including nondiversified funds and funds investing in foreign investments, high-yield bonds, small- and mid-cap stocks, and/or more volatile segments of the economy, entail additional risk and may not be appropriate for all investors. The U.S. government guarantee applies to certain of the underlying securities and not to shares of the government mutual funds. Consult a fund's prospectus for additional information on these and other risks.
